ISA Announces New Master’s Degree Programs Abroad

AUSTIN, TX – February 10th, 2014 – ISA is pleased to announce the debut of new master’s degree programs abroad.

ISA’s new master’s degree programs allow students to enroll directly at an international institution while receiving the type of personalized support services that have defined ISA as a leading study abroad provider in the U.S. Students will have the opportunity to choose from over 100 individual degrees at 10 international institutions throughout England, Ireland, Northern Ireland, Spain and Argentina. The majority of programs can be completed in English in as little as one year, though options in Spanish are also available for students who meet the eligibility requirements.

"For years we've seen that many students returning from our semester, summer, intensive month or even year-long study abroad are looking to continue their education abroad after graduating," explained Rafael Hoyle, Executive Vice President, Academic Affairs. "We're so pleased to now have an option for them through ISA's new master's degrees abroad. These programs are also a great option for students who weren't able to study abroad as undergraduates."

The new master’s degree programs will be featured in the Program Search Tool on ISA’s website allowing students to search by subject of study, location, term and language to see which programs they are not only eligible for, but might be the best fit.

"The launch of these programs provides students with another means of increasing their marketability in an increasingly competitive job market," Hoyle said. "More and more employers are looking to hire individuals who are willing and able to accept an assignment abroad, or who have the aptitudes necessary to perform in a multicultural workplace. Candidates who have completed a graduate degree abroad will certainly stand out to these employers."
